

Bank Advertisement No. 84

The following is a quotation from a circular letter issued by the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago on Mar. 1, 1916:

"There may be some question as to just how much permanent benefit we are deriving from the conditions growing out of the war, but there is little doubt that our dependence upon these conditions is rapidly nearing insignificance. This is daily becoming more evident and the changed attitude which this realization is bringing about is perhaps most clearly indicated by the lessened influence which matters affecting out international relations now have upon the conduct of business affairs. While the controversies in which we are at present entangled might conceivably become serious, there is much less disposition to regard them as matters touching our immediate fortunes than was the case six or even three months ago. That those things disturb us less is due not to a diminished interest, but to the calm confidence in the stability of business that is supported by the restored purchasing power of one hundred million people."

Clothing and Dentistry

Is this a queer combination? You may think so, but listen—

When you need a new suit of clothes, do you go to Portland? At least you shouldn't do so, for you can get your shirts and other wearing apparel just as good and just as cheap, or cheaper, at home.

The same is true of dentistry. Why should you go to Portland to have your teeth taken care of?

I take a personal interest in your work. I am one of you, and my professional reputation is at stake. Except for the money you spend what interest does the Portland dentist take in you? Even though you may get good work, there is that element of personal service lacking.

And then when you have your dental work done here at home, you leave your money at home, and thus help the other fellow.

I ask you as a Hood River citizen just to think this over.

And remember that I guarantee my work. And my prices are no more than you will have to pay in Portland.
